

DEPARTMENT OF SANSKRIT

Sanskrit is a unique language that surpasses all other languages in terms of its antiquity vastness of literature contained therein, depth, uniqueness of expressions, facility to convey the most subtle concepts of all aspects associated with human nature including society, spirituality and such other aspects apart from being the most flexible language and several other issues. The study of Sanskrit has emerged not only as a language but also as ancient Indian knowledge heritage. Its learning can empower students to engage with social reality of India through a critical lens and thus contribute to society. Many people, all over the world are today showing enormous interest towards the wisdom as well heritage of Sanskrit. A critical reading of our cultural past would demand that we study and teach Sanskrit not only from the curiosity point of view but from a desire to learn what has been achieved by ancient Indian thinker. Philosophers, and scientists which is totally missing and neglected in our socio-cultural life in India. Sanskrit not only helps us to envision the past but also opens new vistas for viewing the grand future of our nation.
