The speaker began the workshop by giving information about current scenario to how to succeed in virtual interview , due to the global COVID-19 pandemic and social distancing measures, many industries are hiring online. According to research by Handshake, 89% of employers are conducting their job interviews online. However, pitching yourself as a candidate via video conference can be just as daunting as interviewing face to face.

They were also given brief introduction about the various tips used to make a good impression in a Virtual Job Interview

The speaker also gave valuable insights on interview questions both technical and aptitude. Overall the workshop was very informative and useful where the students gained a brief introduction to kick start their journey.

Content covered

A virtual interview, or video interview, is a digital method that enables remote assessment and screening of candidates. They are often used as a first stage screening method, although their use accelerated as more firms went remote during 2020.

Sometimes they are conducted by telephone but they mostly take place using video conferencing software. Common platforms for remote interviews include Zoom, Microsoft Teams and Hinterview.

Often, virtual interviewing will be conducted like a traditional interview. However, interviewing by video requires more thought about body language, facial expressions and non-verbal communication. These are harder to convey and interpret than during a face-to-face interview.

How to prepare for a virtual interview

1. Test Your Technology

The minute you agree to a virtual interview, test your technology to ensure you're set up for success. Check your internet connectivity, and confirm your camera and microphone are working. If the picture is grainy or you're experiencing an echo. On the day of, test your equipment and internet connection again.

2. Set the Scene and Minimize Distractions

While testing your technology, determine where to take the interview. Find a room with optimal lighting, preferably near a window, or a blank wall to guarantee you're the focal point of the conversation. Whether you sit on your living room couch or in your home office, tidy up your surroundings. It's hard to convince employers you're detail-oriented and organized when there's laundry visibly piling up in the corner. Once settled, eliminate all distractions. Turn off the TV, silence your cell phone, and close any nearby windows to muffle neighborhood traffic.

3. Sit Down Prepared

Just because you're on a computer doesn't mean you can search the web for answers mid-interview, so avoid clicking around. You want to appear focused and ready to answer any questions without the help of the internet. Research the company ahead of time and jot down notes for easy reference. Also print out a copy of your resume, so that you don't forget key talking points.

4. Practice, Don't Memorize

It's important to keep things simple. Don't feel like you have to give a long-winded answer if the question doesn't warrant it. Being clear and concise is one of the most important things in a job interview.

5. Monitor Your Body Language

The main way to communicate confidence is to sit up straight, smile, and keep the camera at eye level. Research shows that employers are more likely to remember what you said if you maintain eye contact, so keep your focus on the camera when talking, not on the image of the hiring manager.

6. Dress the Part

Professional clothing will show you're serious about the position, but there are personal benefits, as well: Studies show that people feel "most authoritative, trustworthy, and competent when wearing formal business attire."

7. Make a Connection

It's not easy to connect with everyone, but it's a crucial part of a virtual interview. You want the interviewer to be able to remember a personal story you told or a common interest you share. This is the best way to prevent yourself from blending in with the other applicants.

8. Be Yourself

Some people will be able to tell if you're "vibe" fits their company right off the bat. Give them a reason to push you through to the second round of interviews by shining a light on how you can help the organization.

9. Immediately Follow Up

If there was something specific you bonded over, mention that in the email so you stay top of mind. Or if an interviewer brought up a particular business challenge, use the follow-up as a way to propose potential solutions. Just keep the email concise; you want your note to leave a lasting impression, not immediately end up in the trash.

5 TOP ONLINE INTERVIEW TIPS

Make an Impression from a Distance

- ★ Look directly into the camera and not at the screen or monitor to make good eye contact
- ★ Don't be afraid to ask for a question to be repeated if you have not heard it properly. It is better to clarify
- ★ The sound system can be less than perfect so speak clearly and avoid mumbling or rushing your words
- ★ Be aware of your facial expressions and posture - they are a large part of your message online
- ★ Pause before answering a question to be sure the interviewer has finished speaking

Self Job Interview

Concluding

Ultimately, the key to acing a virtual interview is proper preparation. From ensuring your technology is working to conducting research before the meeting, sitting down at your computer poised and ready for any and all questions will help set you apart from other applicants.
