Goals Spent Here by Saad Amiry

At the beginning of the year, I set several goals for myself. One of the main goals was to improve my English skills, particularly in writing and speaking. I also aimed to complete my coursework on time and to participate more actively in class discussions. To achieve these goals, I dedicated a specific amount of time each day to practicing English. I used various resources, including textbooks, online courses, and language exchange programs. I also sought feedback from my teachers and peers to identify areas for improvement. By the end of the year, I had successfully completed all my assignments and felt more confident in my English abilities. I was able to contribute more to class discussions and even presented a paper. I am proud of my progress and look forward to continuing to learn and grow in the future.

Rich Collections on Wildlife

The Department of English is pleased to announce a new collection of books and articles on wildlife. This collection includes a variety of titles, from classic nature writing to contemporary environmental science. The books cover a wide range of topics, including the behavior of different species, the impact of human activity on the environment, and the importance of conservation. These resources are available for borrowing from the library and are a valuable addition to our collection. We encourage all students and faculty to explore these works and to share their thoughts on the importance of protecting our natural world.

Quote of the day

Life is not about having everything

It's about finding something in everything.
