Best practices

Department of Zoology

2021-2022

“Devoted ness to animals in our Menology “.

Objective of the Practice:

The Day is aimed at promoting peaceful coexistence between animals and humans and making this world a safer place for animals. It also remind us how animals enhance our lives.

Need Addressed and the Context:

To encourage students to understand the subject concepts and the day is also known as Animal Lovers Day because it encourages love, care, affection, and protection of animals by supporting individuals and organisations who promote animal rights.

The Practice:

- All the animals in the ecosystem co-exist to balance nature's ecology. It is imperative to note that animals play an equally important role in protecting our environment and in promoting human health as well. In order to recoup their atonement, we the Department of Zoology spot few DAYS in our calendar.
- The students are asked to collect the information of that particular animal like, its Classification, Habit, Habitat, Physiology, Evolutionary aspects and Economic importance and their emphasise in Ecological community.
- The students are given time to speak about that animal “for a minute” in the class. So that all other fellow students will have complete information about that particular species.
- To name a few of our celebrations being the Zoologists & Animal lovers are : Penguin awareness Day, International Zebra Day, World Wild life Day, World Sparrow Day, World Camel Day, International Tiger Day, World Animal Day, Turtle Adoption Day, International Cheetah Day& The Day for laboratory animals.
- As part of our curriculum we also created awareness on “ Menstrual Hygiene Day” in Physiology class.

Problems Encountered :

Due to offline- online teaching mode during the pandemic, students had their own shortcomings. Many students especially those residing in rural areas were unable to access the classes due to high cost of smart phones and internet data. It was difficult to maintain the discipline and hold the attention of the students and maybe we are not 100% successful in reaching the motto “Make the world a better place for animals”.
