

Rain water Harvesting

The college has three building blocks with a catchment area of approximately 5000 sq meters. The water is channelized through pipes to the harvesting pits with which ground water level is maintained. The surface area of the college is spread across 7.7 acres and the water on the surface is sent to the plants and greenery through the small canals and the excess water is absorbed into the ground through harvesting pits arranged here and there in the college.

