Department of English
Bachelor of Computer Applications (BCA) "Effective Communication"
Course Outcomes (COs)

COS	Semester-I
CO1	➢ Students will be able to demonstrate proficiency in writing by composing cohesive and well-structured essays, incorporating appropriate use of grammar, punctuation, and vocabulary
CO2	➢ Students will be able to analyze various tenses in English literature, distinguishing between their functions and implications in different contexts.
CO3	➢ Students will be able to synthesize their understanding of language and literatures by engaging in collaborative projects, where they will analyze and interpret literary works, create original compositions.
CO4	➢ Students will evaluate the use of phrases and idiomatic expressions within literary texts, interpreting their figurative meanings and cultural connotations.
CO5	➢ Students will be able to enhance their communication skills, effectively articulating ideas, engaging in constructive discussions, and adapting language register appropriately to different audiences
COS	Semester-II
CO1	➢ Students will be able to demonstrate comprehension of phonetic principles and their application in spoken English.
CO2	➢ Students will analyze spoken English texts, identifying phonetic features and patterns to enhance listening comprehension.
CO3	➢ Students will synthesize phonetic knowledge with literary texts, exploring how language sounds contribute to characterization, mood, and theme.
CO4	➢ Students will apply listening strategies to comprehend various spoken texts, including lectures, presentations, and audiovisual materials, across different registers and genres.
CO5	➢ Students will evaluate the effectiveness of different speaking and listening strategies in achieving communication goals and building rapport.

COS	Semester-III
CO1	➢ Students will be able to understand the fundamental concepts of English language mechanics, including the proper use of articles, prepositions, and plosives in written and spoken communication.
CO2	➢ Students will be able to apply knowledge of articles, prepositions, and plosives to effectively construct grammatically correct sentences and paragraphs in various writing contexts, such as essays, reports, and creative pieces.
CO3	➢ Students will be able to analyze written passages to identify the strategic use of articles, prepositions, and plosives, evaluating their impact on clarity, coherence, and style.
CO4	➢ Students will be able to synthesize knowledge of articles, prepositions, and plosives with advanced writing skills to produce well-developed essays and literary analyses, demonstrating fluency and sophistication in language use.
CO5	➢ Students will be able to assess the quality of written compositions, including articles, paragraphs, and dialogue excerpts, using established criteria related to grammar, syntax, coherence, and creativity.