BEST PRACTICES

Title of the Best Practice: QR Codes used to learn Indian kings and queens.

Objective of the practice: To learn about different kings and queens of Indian rulers with QR codes.

The Context: A QR code is a two-dimensional code that can be read by smart phones and other devices with a camera. They are commonly used to share links to websites, contact information, or make payments. When you scan a QR code with your smart phone, the QR code app will decode the data and take you to the linked website. By this, students created QR codes where, if you scan a QR code, you will find information about the respective Indian Kings or Queens. This can be said as a creative way to learn about our prominent Kings and Queens.

PRACTICE: QR codes are made up of a series of dots arranged in a square grid that store data. The dots, which represent a 1 in binary code, are contrasted against the white spaces, which represent a 0. The unique patterns in the code correspond to a set of letters that computers can read and translate into a web page. There are many QR code generators on the market. QR codes are generated using a QR code builder or QR code software.
