Academic plan

The College's proud history with its strong tradition of teaching excellence and student engagement as well as its beautiful campus, relatively small and close-knit community, and its breadth of co-curricular opportunities for students facilitate a transformative learning environment with a research-intensive environment.

The Academic plan builds on these strengths to guide our college in 21st century.

Our Academic Mission : -

We regard our college as that is both student-centred and research-intensive. Its mission is thus defined by two central activities: learning and discovery. To ensure that these two activities work together learning must proceed in the same way that research progresses: through the guided struggle with a question, a problem, a relationship, or a task.

We are primarily concerned with teaching and learning. We use the term active or inquiry-based learning to describe the curriculum structure that emerges from this design.

Some elements of the student learning experience will lead to the development of specialized knowledge; others will be more general with a wider range of application. Our students will gain
