THE INSTITUTION:

The Institution could conduct the seminar making the faculty members aware of the subject in depth regarding financial inclusion, particularly about the opportunities and challenges in financial inclusion in India. The College became popular in the country, particularly, in the State by conducting a two day National Seminar first time in the history of Govt. Degree College, Zaheerabad, which is situated in rural and backward area of Telangana State.

The college is recognized by the people of this area as academic oriented college and that it has conducted a National Level Seminar for two days on financial inclusion and inclusive growth by inviting resource persons from different parts of India.

THE FACULTY:

The faculty members all over India were invited to submit their paper highlighting the need of augmenting financial inclusion to ensure holistic growth of the country particularly to bring the financial excluded to the formal financial fold. 200 faculty members from various colleges have attended and exchanged their views. The seminar became a majestic platform for the faculty members as well as academicians. 120 papers were submitted by the faculty members out of which 43 full length papers have been published in the proceedings to popularize the views of the faculty members on the necessity of systematic and flawless inclusive growth solutions to achieve universal financial inclusion and sustainable growth.

STUDENTS:

As the topic is mostly relevant to the students, nearly 200 students have participated in the seminar and upgraded their knowledge. Students committees have worked hard to conduct the seminar in a defeating manner. Apart from understanding importance of financial inclusion and financial literacy, they also experienced the team work by involving themselves in various committees of the seminar. They understood the way of presentation of papers and preparation of papers for a seminar. Some of the students also presented their papers through which they have expressed their opinions on the topic.

SOCIETY:

At the end of the day the society represented by faculty members, resource persons, students, staff, administrators, academicians and social activists gained the indepth knowledge on the topic. The knowledge gained through this activity will spread to the next generation also.

Summary of the Seminar Proceedings

The two day national seminar on “financial inclusion for inclusive growth: issues and challenges” held at the Government Degree College of Zaheerabad had rolled out a red carpet to the eminent politicians, researchers, Bankers, academicians and industrialists to debate on the genuine need of inclusive growth and how it could be fueled by the financial inclusion in long run. The seminar which has conglomerated more than one hundred and forty research papers led to a thought provoking and very novel discussion on the issues and concerns encountered by the state in the process of fructifying the core objectives of inclusive growth. Most of the delegates have expressed their firm opinion that financial inclusion is the critical success factor of fostering inclusive growth as millions of down trodden people in the rural arcades are still lingering far behind the fundamental financial services like bank account. There are innumerable issues on the pragmatic lines why people with very feeble economic back ground could not venture to spell out the word called “bank” and secluding themselves from the main stream of economic development. Delegates have very empirically illustrated such reasons and tendered their valuable recommendations which are published in the seminar proceedings and made available for the common public to review and propose their opinions.

The resource personnel whose dexterity in the fields of Commerce and Economics is impeccable have made all the endeavours to extract the best presentations from the delegates who presented their papers in four different technical sessions. The resource personnel comprising eminent professors and bankers have also contributed their strategic ideas for expeditiously disseminating the programmes of inclusive growth. Most of the resource personnel were also in Concorde with the theme of the seminar and expressed that effective financial inclusion not only arrests the leakages of public expenditure but also helps genuine beneficiaries to reap the maximum advantage of the policies designed and implemented by the state. They have advocated designing more viable financial products and integrating them with the basic bank accounts of the poor, so that, they take the notice of dividends granted by financially engineered products and starts channelizing their hard earned savings into the formal investment avenues. It will certainly mitigate the impact of unorganized financial intermediaries and their exploitation and in turn accelerates the process of capital formation. This phenomenon can become a seamless process and apportion the dividends of economic growth on equitable basis which is the crux of inclusive growth. The seminar sought feedback from the students and local stakeholders who also took active part and constituted a wide spectrum of delegates in all the four sessions and well presented the perceptions of a common folk on the milieu of financial inclusion and how it helps adopting inclusive growth strategies.
