Unique event at govt. college sees students bringing 'bland text' to life on stage

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
SANGAREDDY

Macbeth, Mark Antony, Julius Caesar – all of William Shakespeare's characters on one stage!

That was made possible by the students of TARA Government College here as they experimented with a learning strategy called 'Performing Texts'.

The programme was conceived by the English department where bland text came alive with an array of events such as hot seat, tableau, gallery walk, mono action, one-act play and role play from the textbooks. These activities aimed at ensuring that a student performing from the text learns it too, said head of English department, M. Praveena.

"These language strategies help students express themselves better," added college principal Chandra Mukherji.

As part of the day-long event, the students enacted Macbeth, Julius Caesar and other texts.

"I was terrified to play Dorothy," said Akhitha, a first year student, adding, "But I really enjoyed the way the audience absorbed my performance."
