Fish farming or pisciculture involves raising fish commercially in tanks or enclosures, such as fish ponds, usually for food.

It is different from aquaculture, which is the farming of aquatic animals such as fish, crustaceans, molluscs and so on.

A facility that releases juvenile fish into the wild for recreational fishing or to supplement a species' natural numbers is generally referred to as fish hatchery. World wide, the most important fish species produced in fish farming are carp, tilapia, salmon, and cat fish.

Demand is increasing for fish and fish protein, which has resulted in widespread overfishing in wild fisheries. China provides 62% of the world's farmed fish. As of 2016 more than 50% seafood was produced by aquaculture has been the main driver of the increase in fisheries and aquaculture production.

Aquaculture makes use of local photosynthetic production (extensive) or fish that are fed with external food supply.

India's Cotton & Textile Industry:

India's textile and clothing Industry contributes 4% per cent to Gross Domestic product, 14 percent in industrial production and 12 percent in export earnings.

It is the second largest industry providing employment after agriculture. It provides employment to around 3.5 million peoples.

- First Cotton Mill of India
The first Indian Cotton cloth mill was established in 1818 at Fort Glaster near Kolkata, albeit this mill was a failure the second mill which was established by KGN Daber in 1854 is called the true foundation of modern Cotton industry in India its name Bombay Spinning and Weaving Company partition of India in 1947 affected Indian Cotton Industry badly. Most of the weavers who were muslim migrated to Pakistan there were 394 cotton mills in India before partition out of this 14 mills went to Pakistan remaining 380 mills which were left in India. However 40% Cotton producing area becomes area of Pakistan thus India was forced to import raw cotton.

- Adverse Effects of Partition on Cotton Industry.

Poultry Visiget

Poultry-farming is the form of animal husbandry which raises domesticated birds such as chickens, ducks, turkeys and geese to produce meat or eggs for food. It has originated from the agricultural era. Poultry mostly chickens are farmed in great numbers. More than 60 billion chickens are killed for consumption annually. Chickens raised for eggs are known as layers, while chickens raised for meat are called broilers.

-According to the World Watch Institute, 4 percent of the world's poultry meat, and 68 percent of eggs are produced intensively. Commercial hens usually begin laying eggs at 16-21 weeks of age, although production gradually declines soon after from approximately 25 weeks of age.

Environmental conditions are often automatically controlled in egg-laying systems. For example, the duration of the light phase is initially increased to prompt the beginning of egg laying at 16-20 weeks of age and then mimics summer day length which stimulates the hens to continue laying eggs all year round.

Cement, Bricks & Bricks product factory

A Concrete block is one among several best concrete products used in construction. They are primarily used in the construction of walls.

Mixing, Molding, Curing and curing are the four basic processes involved in the manufacture of cement. Sand and gravel are kept outside in piles and are transferred into storage bins in the plant by a conveyor belt as it necessary. The portland cement is stored and kept outside in large vertical silos to protect it from moisture.

The production starts and the required amounts of sand gravel and cement are transferred by gravity or by mechanical means to a weigh batcher that measures the proper quantity of each material.

A small amount of water is added to the mixer when the dry materials are blended. Colouring pigments and admixture chemicals may also be added for this time. The concrete is then mixed for almost ten minutes.
