GIRRAJ GOVERNMENT COLLEGE(A)

The college was established in the post independent era in 1956 and was named after Girrajmalji Agarwal, one of the prominent philanthropists who helped in its inception by donations. It was taken over by the Government of Andhra Pradesh in 1959. The college is located in sprawling 29.6 acres of land on the outskirts of Nizamabad city. It is an autonomous institution accredited by NAAC with Grade B. It is affiliated to Telangana University. The college is offering 19 Under Graduate Courses and 7 Post Graduate Courses with around 5000 students' admissions both at UG and PG levels.

It has state-of-the-art laboratory and two libraries with huge number of books. A Regional Study Centre of Ambedkar Open University is located on its campus. The college envisions at imparting qualitative education among the students of the region which is predominantly agrarian.

Nizamabad City and District

Nizamabad city is located in the north-west region of Telangana State. It is one of the municipal corporations of the State with two International Hotels. The city is just 160 km far away from Hyderabad, the capital of Telangana and is well connected with road and railway line to Hyderabad and Nanded, a city in the eastern Maharashtra. A fair number of trains are run connecting Nizamabad with Vizag, Tirupati and Bubaneswar. The perennial peninsular river, the Godavari and its major tributary the Manjeera flow along the north and the west borders of the district respectively making the entire region more alluvial fertile and evergreen. Thus, the two major irrigation water reservoirs, the Sriram Sagar Project and Nizam Sagar are built on these two rivers. The confluence of the Manjeera with the Godavari occurs at a holy place, Kandakurthy which is just 35 kilo meters away from Nizamabad. Furthermore, the Gnana Saraswati temple is located on the banks of the Godavari at Basara which is 35 kilo meters away from Nizamabad. The eastern and southern parts of the district are predominantly occupied with typical sub-tropical deciduous rain forests bordering the erstwhile Karimnagar and Medak districts.

About the Department

Dr P.L.N. Sharma was the head, Department of English at its inception in 1956. Many distinguished members of faculty like Mr. Patanjali, Ms. Morita Eunice, Mr. Narasimha Chary, Mr. Soma Seshu, Mr. Bhujangam and Dr. S. Laxmi Narayana, a lexicographer who compiled English and Telugu Dictionary rendered services to the department. It functions with 14 dedicated members of faculty whose scholarship, innovative practices in the teaching-learning process and their relentless services remain crucial ones in its successful functioning. It is chaired by John Sukumar with the senior faculty members Dr. I. Gangadhar, Dr. Dandya Swamy, Dr. V. Shyam Kumar and Prathibha are to mention a few. Besides taking up many academic activities, the department organizes an 'English Club of Students' on behalf of which the students publish an English Journal, 'Girraj Gazette'. Apart from offering English at Under Graduate level, the department has also been offering Post Graduation (MA in English) since 1982 with high percentage of students' enrolments and results. In the pursuit of exploring new avenues in English Literature and Language, the department of English seeks to organize the national seminar of contemporary relevance. Therefore, it welcomes you all warmly!

Recent Trends in English Literature and Language

Literature has undergone uncountable changes ever since its existence. Passing through all the ages, it has flourished richly. Although English literature started and flourished in England, it has gone on to sow the seeds of creativity in English in other parts of the world.

The literary world had seen the high Modernism of Eliot (The Waste Land) and Joyce (Ulysses), many different variations of realism-psychological, kitchen sink, etc. mystery fiction and science fiction in the previous century. The 21st century has proved that English literature is no longer the sole province of the imperial England. In the 21st century multiple trends have emerged. There has been an explosion of literary explorations of marginalized characters-minority, gay etc.

Another important modern trend in English literature is the inclusion of non-white, suppressed and oppressed voices, especially those from the former colonies. New canons like Post-colonial Literature, Third-World literature, African literature, Aboriginals literature have emerged. Identity politics, Gender, Race, Class, Nationhood, Alienation, migration, displacement, hybridity, environment, diaspora are major concerns of inquiry and exploration. Dalit literature and Biographical, Autobiographical and Memoire literature are the other new trends found in post independence Indian writing. Advent of computer and availability of internet has paved way for Digital or Cyber literature in which the writer relies on cyber media like website, blogs or social media pages.

Change has become the goal of Teaching English in the 21st century. Two key changes have been evident. One is to produce fully competent English knowing bilinguals and the other is that English is no more viewed as an end in itself but as a means to learn content such as science and mathematics. The theories and methods are constantly evolving in the ELT. Blended learning, E-learning, Task-based and Situated Language Learning and Teaching, Edutainment, Use of online games and games in ELT, CLIL (Content and Language Integrated Learning), CALL, MALL, now have created wide range of possibilities for ELT. These advances have created possibilities for every child to learn English in the most enjoyable manner if it is supplied with the right kind of materials and pedagogy produced by one's own native wisdom and flavor.
