it fist of Rice. Best Practice of Govt. Degree College. They are collecting the Rice from our college staff, students and donated to the poor people.

Receipts for donation of rice to NGO SAFA BAITUL MAAL zaheerabad

Title of the practice: ORIENTATION OF NEW STUDENTS

Objectives of the Practice:

- New students who have taken admission to various programmes in the College need to be familiarized with the College, its Motto, Vision, Mission, facilities, rules, discipline, etc
- The practice also seeks to familiarize every student with the peers as well as the College staff- Principal, Teaching and non-teaching staff, etc. It seeks to make them aware of the location and utility of various facilities offered by the institution.

The Context:

- Students admitted to the undergraduate programmes in the College come from varied backgrounds. They are admitted after passing the Intermediate Examination from Board of Intermediate. They are students from different mediums of instruction, including English, Urdu and Telugu. Further, their earlier education is from various Junior Colleges, which have their own set of rules, regulations, values and ways of functioning.
- The practice has been pioneered by the institution for the last three years by holding a special Orientation Programme.
- The programme serves to introduce them to the essence of the institution through a warm welcome by the Principal, staff and coordinators of Committees.

The Practice:

- New admissions generally begin after the declaration of DOST. Classes too, begin soon after sufficient admissions are completed, and various subject teachers begin to orient their students on a smaller scale by conducting bridge courses. Keeping this in view, a day is designated to hold a special Orientation Program, which is held in the College seminar hall. Students are informed through notices as well as through social media groups, if formed till then, about the Orientation Programme. The Program begins with an address by the Principal, who welcomes them on behalf of the College. A senior and experienced faculty member then explains the examination system followed by the affiliating University for the different programmes.

- This teacher also explains the internal assessment system in the College- the Unit Tests and Preliminary examinations, and goes on to explain the internal assessment methodology followed for submission of marks to the University. Students are made aware of Program outcomes and program specific outcomes to make them aware of expectations of the College from them. They are briefed about the various Cells functioning in the College to guide them toward their personality development through co-curricular and extra-curricular activities by these cells. Coordinators of different Cells take turns to speak about their objectives and activities. Information is provided by the respective in-charges for enrolment in NSS and the benefits from these. The Librarian provides details all the available resources in the library for general reading as well as examinations.

Evidence of Success:

- The comfort levels of the new students see evident improvement through this practice. They are seen to adjust well with the routine of the institution much faster and easily. There is ease of movement to classes, and to the library and College canteen during intervals since they are now acquainted with the surroundings.
- The points touched upon by various speakers during the Orientation programme also serve to give them the required Dos and DON'Ts along with the other necessary information. Students not only become familiar with their peers, but also become acquainted with senior students.

Problems Encountered:

- The key to the success of the Orientation programme lies in the ability to target the maximum possible number of new students. However, the admissions process continues late into the first semester, with revisions in the admission process and number of seats from the Government and University
