Dress for Success: Shoes Women Should & Shouldn't Wear to an Interview

Rule #1: Closed Toe

The best choice for professional shoes is to go with a closed toe, especially for an interview or the career fair.

Rule #3: Heels Aren't for Everyone

If you can't walk in heels, don't wear them! Be practical with your shoe choices. It's tough to appear professional when you're uncomfortable.

Rule #5: Shoes to Avoid

Flip flops, athletic shoes, clogs, or "eskimo" boots are "no-no's" for an interview. If your interview includes a field visit, bring a change of work boots or tennis shoes with you.

Rule #2: Low to Moderate Heel

Heels look professional and confident, but keep them that way. Platforms and stilettos are better suited for less professional environments.

Rule #4: Neutral Colors

Neutrals like black, brown, or tan are best. Other colors are okay when kept to a simple shoe style.

Rule #6: What About Sandals?

Nice, modest sandals are acceptable in certain offices when observing business casual or casual Friday, but not for an interview.

- The production scheduler has to work product numbers, lot numbers and similar information to make it work.
