Abstract
The main objective of this article is to analyze the 'Health Infrastructure in India', to know the functions of health care system in India, to analyze the failures and achievements of health care. The article enumerates the condition of health care in a health emergency especially in the case of covid-19, and also in the context of chronic diseases. India has a multi-layer health care model which is combination of public and private health insurances. Public health care is free for Indian citizens. The Indian public health sector encompasses 18% of total outpatient care and 44% of inpatient care. The public health care aims at providing healthcare to everyone irrespective of their caste, color, creed and religion. Private health care is the primary source of health care in most of the urban areas. Private insurance is also available in India through government sponsored health insurance schemes. The health care system in India is having few loopholes such as lack of proper provision, proper utilization and attainment of goal. This research paper to be discussed Structuring the Robust Health Care System of India – A Study.
