BEST PRACTICE -1:

CO-OPERATIVE FARMING

With the co-operation and co-ordination of the staff and students, we are conducting one of the best practices in the name of "Co-operative farming". Most of our students and staff belong to rural background, all of them know the importance of agriculture in the life of human beings. Especially vegetable farming has the greater role in the regular life for lively hood. In view of this, our college take initiation to cultivate vegetables and leafy crops in the name of "Co-Operative farming".

The Practice:

As per the programme in June /July month of every year we plant vegetable, leafy seeds in the soil of college land. After two or three months we get crop with the organic farming method. We used these organic vegetables to prepare and serve salads to students once in fifteen days.

Best practice-2:

SUJALAM-SUPHALAMObjectives:

To aware on water pollution problems to the people. To know the scientific evidence on water quality.

To participate students in public awareness programs.

To compare water quality parameters to health of public. To bring the thoughts on lab-to-land concept.

To provide excess laboratory skills along with curriculum.
