1	Economic infrastructure	Huge investments in Key Strategic Sectors including Growth impulsive industry. The founding fathers of our republic used the public sector as an essential and vibrant element in the building-up of India's economy	Private sector utilised the Public Sector in ancillary and joint sectors initially. Though the public sector units have contributed heavily to develop the industrial base of the country, a number of problems have begun in many of the public enterprises	LPG - WTO and WB influence changed the focus from Public Disinvestment Ministry started in 1996. Serious problems have been observed in the insufficient growth in productivity, poor project management, over-manning, lack of continuous technological upgradation, inadequate attention to R&D and human resource development	The low rate of return on capital invested has inhibited the ability of public enterprises to regenerate themselves in terms of new investments as well in new technology development. This resulted in many of the public enterprises becoming a burden rather than an asset	Government has no business to do business. Disinvestment as a source of revenue
