The above mentioned students are done a study project under the supervision of Dr. Dup Singh Lakavath lecturer in Botany. Students approached local farmers and Tribes of Mannanur, penta, Balmur penta and Lingala pentas and thandas of Nalamala forest region utilize different medicinal plants for the treatment of livestock. Traditional healers possess tremendous expertise in preparing herbal formulations of medicinal plants.

In this project Gastrointestinal infections were most common in the studied region. Therefore attention should be given to provide good quality fodder and water to the livestock.

Young generation should be mobilized to take interest in ethno veterinary practices in order to conserve this knowledge.
